Please note: After energizing it is not uncommon for irrigation valves to seep or stick open causing excessive water consumption and possible water damage, particularly after being shut down for an extended period of time. Failure can occur within hours, days or weeks following seasonal energizing.

It is extremely important that the irrigation system is frequently monitored after energizing to ensure proper operation; this energizing service merely activates your system for the season and provides a visual check to make sure it is operational at the time of turn on. It does not assure proper operation thereafter.

By authorizing Warner's Landscape to perform this energizing service, Owner acknowledges and agrees to indemnify, and hold harmless Warner's Landscape and its agents, from and against any and all claims, losses, damages, penalties and fees arising out of the performance of this service, or from the operation of Owner's irrigation system.
